

2006 Labrador Retriever Sauvignon Blanc Puppy Series Tasting Notes

The Marlborough region in New Zealand produces perhaps the most consistent, unique and best value wines in the world. There, I said it and I will stand by it. What makes Marlborough Sauvignon Blanc so special? First of all, it's that nearly indescribable sea breeze aroma. If you've ever stood ocean-side on a cool, breezy day and closed your eyes and filled your lungs with crisp, salty, sea-weedy air, then you know exactly what I mean. This should come as no surprise since Marlborough is a coastal region on New Zealand's south island, and the grapes in its vineyards are bathed in sea breeze all season. What's also unique to this wine are the flavors—no other Sauvignon Blanc in the world has the same high tone expression of fresh-cut pineapple, lime zest, and yes, kiwi fruit. The spicy edge, another quality unique to this region, gives this wine a freshness and vibrancy that is simply like nothing else.

100% Marlborough Sauvignon Blanc

Alc. = 13.3%

995 Cases produced

